American Institute of Steel Construction

130 E Randolph Street, Suite 2000
Chicago, IL 60601
312.670.2400

If you have a recently moved into or anticipate moving into a senior management position during the next few years, then this event is for you! Past attendees, some of whom will be back for their third consecutive program, overwhelmingly report that the Future Leaders Ideas Lab is a great program that provided them with valuable tools and incredible networking. Look what they had to say!

"Leaders generally have very few peers within their own environment to interact with. The opportunity to meet, network, share and validate means and methods of leadership is a priceless value that can be captured by participating in this AISC sponsored event!" Rick Russel Future Fabricating.

"AISC has done a tremendous job creating and promoting the IDEAS Lab for future leaders in the steel industry. Not only does it educate, but it also provides talking points and leadership platforms for you to implement in your own company. I recommend this conference for anyone in a pivotal role within his/her company." Russell Blocker Universal Steel Inc.

You'll receive two major benefits from attending:

- You'll learn valuable tools that will help you both the day you get home and in the future. Topics include legal issues, negotiation skills, future of fabrication software and much more!
- You'll meet people with whom you'll be able to exchange ideas -- people who are facing or who have already faced many of the same issues you are and who can help you be better.

Visit www.aisc.org/ideaslab and register for the best event you'll attend this year!
